Cite

Teach users about the importance of citations from an early age. Britannica keeps this sometimes difficult process as simple as possible for all levels and abilities

Literacy Support Tools

There are many ways to support readers and encourage independent reading. Use the Read Aloud tool to have the text read aloud while following along with the highlighted text. Support vocabulary acquisition by using the Quick Click Dictionary. Simply double click on the unknown word to access the Merriam-Webster Dictionary definition. Support English Language Learners by translating content into more than 80 languages.

My Research

Users can set up a personal My Research account to view their favorited content and organize it into Resource Packs. The notes section allows users to easily record notes on each piece of content!

Account Set Up

Select "My Research" in the upper right-hand corner of any page of Britannica Academic. When the login box appears, select "Create an account." Fill in the required information and select the "Create Account" button. Now you are ready to collect Britannica information and create Resource Packs to share with others.

How should users use Resource Packs?

Users can keep track of the content they have found as they research by organizing it into a Resource Pack. They can use the notes section to write summaries of key points and other notes they collect as they research. Users can email and share the pack with teachers and peers to share their progress.
